The Best Blood Remedy.

August A. Klages, 810 St. Charles street, Baltimore, Md., writes: From my youth I suffered from a poisonous taint in my blood. My face and body was continually affected with eruptions and sores. I am now 42 years of age and been treated both in Germany and America, but no remedy overcame the trouble until I used Botanic Blood Balm, my skin is clear, smooth and healthy, and I consider the poison permanently driven from my blood. I indorse it as the best blood remedy."

People are still coming from the icy north, to the genial clime of Lawrence County.

Editors Democrat:—

A few weeks ago I saw in the local columns of your paper a statement that one of the nuns at the convent at this place had committed suicide by drowning herself in the waters of Shoal Creek, about two miles north of town. "Only this and nothing more." I was surprised at the absence of particulars as well as at the entire silence of the Lawrence Union on a matter of such gravity. Please give us some more information. What was the name of the unfortunate nun? Who found the body? Who held the inquest required by law? Where was she buried? What state of affairs in the convent led one of its inmates to escape the same by self-destruction? and why has so little been said about the unfortunate affair? Please answer these questions for the information of your many readers, and to satisfy,
An Enquiring Citizen

In answer to the above questions we would say:—

Her name was,—Donatta.

We are unable to say who found the body.

There was no inquest held.

She was buried in the Catholic Cemetery.

As to the state of affairs in the convent, we know nothing; but we are informed that this unfortunate woman was in a demented state, which required a close watch to be kept over her to keep her in the convent, but she finally made her escape, and committed suicide, (as was supposed) by drowning herself in Shoal Creek.

The reason no more has been said of the unfortunate affair, is on account of the secluded life of a nun.

Their selected stock for 1893-4 is the best ever offered this side of Nashville.

SAD DEATH.

John Belle Simms is dead. This young man was cut down just in the zenith of his manhood. Mr. Simms was a member of the Masonic fraternity; a deacon in the C. P. Church; and an attorney at law. Early in life, he selected law as his profession, and succeeded in gaining some prominence in that profession. He was buried with Masonic honors at Mt. Arrarat cemetery Wednesday evening. He leaves a wife and two little girls, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his death. He was a kind husband and father, and was endeared to his family by all the ties that could be woven by affection. It was a sad and untimely death. Our heartfelt sympathies are extended to the bereaved.

Neal Belov, died at his home at West Point, Wednesday. Mr. Belov was one of the best known and most highly respected young men in the county.

Guy Springer was in the burg this week. He speaks in the highest terms of the Lawrenceburg Flouring Mills.
